Board of Aldermen Meet in Council Chamber.

Natchaug Lodge, No. 22, K. of P. Moving Pictures at the Bijou and Scenic Temple.

SAN JOSE COUNCIL Decorates Graves of Departed Brothers, Following Services at St. Jo-seph's Church.

A little more than a quarter of a century ago. San Jose council, No. 14, Knights of Columbus was organized in this city. On Sunday the members held their exercises in memory of forty-four deceased members. Because of the threatening weather the attendance was not as large as in former years, but there were several hundred people present at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic cemetery to honor the deceased members of the organization.

The members met in their rooms on Center street shortly after 2 o'clock and formed in line for the march to St. Joseph's church. The officers and members were accompanied by Wheeland return.

At the church several hundred gathered. Rev. Father Baumeister, chaplain of the organization, officiated at the service which was held for the repose of the touis of deceased members. The fosary was recited by the priest, members of the society responding.

Afterwards the members of the order, through their past grand knights, decorated the graves of priests of the parish whose bodies lie in the rectory

In the march to the cemetery there were fully one hundred and fifty members in line. They marched down Jackson street to Main and down Main to Ash street to the North Windham road and up that thoroughfare to the rear entrance to St. Joseph's ceme-

Ralph Hammond, aged 15, and Merrill Forbush, aged 12, gave a novel explanation of the reason why they broke into the Chaplin schoolhouse early Friday morning and destroyed a number of school books. They said they had run away from their home in Rutland, Mass. and were on their way to Florida. They had walked all the way to Chaplin and in doing so had lost their way several times. Seeing the schoolhouse it dawned upon them the schoolhouse it dawned upon them that with maps they would have no difficulty in finding their way south. This is what led them to commit the break and consequent damage.

The fathers of the boys came to Wilsee, and it was agreed that > Windham Raised $3,000,000. The state board of equalization has again given the grand list of Windham a boost of $3,999,909. The list of 1999 was similarly increased. Many people do not have any idea what this increase means to the town. The fact crease means to the town. The fact that the state board added $3,000,000 to the grand list is evidence that the board believes Windham property is placed in the list at a much lower figure than it ought to be in all justice. Any one familiar with the grand list of the town of Windham knows that the increase is due to the fact that the increase is due to the fact that the corporations of the city of Willimantic do not put in their tax list anything like a fair valuation of their property. Consequently the state tax on the additional $3,000,000 comes out of those who mean to be fair and square with the town in the matter of property valuation. Liquor Cases Settled.

Gaetana Mazzola, Michelo Mazzola, Vinsenzo Alfredo, who were arrested a week ago Sunday in a raid made by the police on a charge of violating the liquor law were before the police court Saturday morning. The men were represented by Patrick J. Danahey. All pleaded guilty with making a sale and with keeping liquor with intent to sell the same contrary to law. A few parents and friends attended, making about thirty in all. The pic-nic lasted until four o'clock, everyone having an enjoyable time.

Protestants are too much inclined to feel that the Roman Catholic clergy and particularly the hierarchy, know nothing or care nothing about Protest ant writers or speakers. But Mr. Sila McBee editor of The Churchman, who But Mr. Silas McBee editor of The Churchman, who has been making a tour throughout Europe and the Holy Land in connection with the movement for united Christendom, reports his reception by Cardinal Merry del Val at Rome in last week's issue of The Churchman. "While discussing Bishop Bonomelli's letter and its effect at Edinburgh and since," he says, "I mentioned what Dr. Alexander Whyte had said of it and described the wonderfully catholic prayer ander Whyte had said of it and described the wonderfully catholic prayer with which Dr. Whyte had opened the conference. At the mention of Dr. Whyte's name. Cardinal Merry del Valexclaimed with intense feeling. On! but he's a rare man! His writings are beautiful. This was not the only occasion or which I wondered how little Christians knew of each other. How many non-Romans, or Romans, for that matter have imagined the cardinal matter have imagined the cardina secretary of state reading and appre ciating the writings of the second Presbyterian? Or, from Scotch Prespyterian? Or, from the other side, how many Anglicans and Protestants are familiar with the wonderful writings of this Scotch statesman and saint Echo answers, 'How many?'
